POPULAR MRS. CLEVELAND.

Perhaps Her Chief Charm Is Her Naturality and Unselfishness.

ew York Herald Many people have asked me What is the secret of Mrs. Cleveland universal popularity?" It is not at all a hard question to answer, and I am sure that all who know her will agree with me that it is Mrs. Cleveher a popularity which perhaps no other woman has so fully attained -I think more completely than any other woman I ever met. Mrs. which go to make the perfect woman. The material is so fully developed in her nature that she can not see a little child anywhere no matter how

Mrs. Cleveland's sweetness and tenderness toward old people is always noticeable. Her patience and and self-possession is remarkable. I have seen her under circumstances of the most trying nature where most women would have shown signs of annoyment; where an ill mannered crowd of people in their eagerness to gain a closer view of her would almost trample on and crush her and yet she maintained a caluness of demeanor that was marvelous

Mrs. Cleveland is fond of her servants, gentle to all, and yet with this sweetness of nature she posseses great firmness of an individuality of character Her word is law in her household. She has the courage of her convictions and nothing will deems necessary tomake for her

Mrs. Cleveland is devotedly ather presence, who were great friends of hers, discussing the reemblance of her parents One of them said Ruth is a lovely baby and ust like her mother. Mrs Cleveand turned and said: "Ruth is a lovely baby, but is just like her father. She does not even look like me. I am sure I should not like her half so well if she did not look like her

Newspapers of to-day are most po tent factors in politics The fraternity should be recognized. While they are liberal to a fault, generous beyond their means often, they are always zealous in the cause they espouse. It is not a mistake exactly that men make newspapers, but there can be no question about newspapers making men. The press don't ask for much and don't even get what they ask for. But it is our opinion that in the near future they will at least stand an even chance with other mortals.-Lamar Democrat.
